

6th Senate opens door to the public

The Senate of the University of Victoria in British Columbia has become the sixth in Canada to open its meetings to the public. The University of Waterloo was the fifth.

The Senate at Waterloo voted overwhelmingly for the change. The motion for open meetings, moved by Dr. Howard Petch, academic vice-president, was adopted only a week after the release of the report of the university's study committee on university government. The report did not recommend open meetings.

"The action is quite in order", said President J. G. Hagey, "because there is nothing in the university's charter which requires the meetings of the Senate to be closed meetings."

May televise meetings

The Senate also asked for a study of the possibility of providing coverage of the meetings by closed circuit TV, since the space in the Senate and Board room will limit the public gallery to 25 people.

Admission to the gallery will be by ticket, distributed on a first-come, first-served basis. Tickets will be available immediately after Senate executive committee meetings, which are held not less than 10 days in advance of each regular meeting of the Senate.

The agenda for regular meetings will be posted in the university libraries at least seven days before each meeting.

Dr. Petch's motion stipulated that visitors must observe the rules of decorum established by the Senate and that, upon a majority vote of the Senate, the gallery may be cleared for discussion of a specific issue.

The Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada reports that open Senate meetings are now held at Simon Fraser University, University of British Columbia, and McGill University. McGill's Senate also recommended, after a joint meeting with the Board of Governors, that sessions of the Board should be open, except when confidential matters, as determined by its members, are discussed.

McGill's action follows a recommendation of a Senate committee on the

Meds' cafeteria seeking patrons

The cafeteria in the new Medical Sciences Building opened for business on Nov. 18. Normal hours of operation are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Monday to Friday inclusive, with luncheon being served from 11:30 to 2:30.

The cafeteria is an "open" operation. Anyone on the campus may make use of this modern dining area which can seat up to 350 persons.

The prices are reasonable, with several luncheon selections available at different price levels including a daily "special" if you wish to move out of the range of normal fare in the other food services on the campus.

At other than the luncheon period an assortment of sandwiches, toast, juices and beverages are available. In addition a bank of vending machines will supply hot and cold beverages, candy, pastries and sandwiches.

The cafeteria is on the 2nd floor. To reach it from outside the Medical Sciences Building, enter by the door on the east side (facing Queen's Park) and follow the directional signs. Bon Appétit!

Alberta's universities launch building fund for $25 million

A campaign to raise $25 million was launched November 1 by Alberta's three universities. The funds will go for high priority construction programs at the three universities—The University of Alberta, The University of Calgary, and The University of Lethbridge.

The reason behind the fund raising campaign is the anticipated growth of these universities to and beyond 1972.

The additional funds brought in by this campaign will be a supplement to the $185 million five-year government grant announced last year.

In their first fund raising campaign, Alberta's universities will appeal to business and industry, foundations, alumni, and friends over Canada to aid the universities in financing capital construction to 1972.

Council cool to an outsider as chairman

At its meeting on November 11th, the President's Council was informed of the decision of the Board of Governors to lend its assistance to the Committee on the Structure of the University in the form in which it is now being recommended by the President's Council with ATS and SAC concurrence, by arranging for the attendance at meetings of not more than two members of the Board of Governors and by providing accommodation and secretarial assistance for the committee. The Council instructed its secretary to convey formally to the Board its deep appreciation of the Governors' concern for the welfare of the University

Discipline Committee asks many more briefs before Nov 30 deadline

The response of staff and students alike to the appeal of the Campbell committee for written ideas on improvements in disciplinary procedures has been disappointing.

"We have only 10 briefs so far, although since last summer we have been urging anyone interested to submit suggestions as early as possible", said Prof. Arthur M. Kruger, secretary of the committee.

The committee set a deadline of Nov. 30 for the receipt of briefs. This, however, is a target date, Prof. Kruger explained, and briefs received later will be accepted. But it is hoped to have a large number by that time because the briefs on hand by the 30th are to be the basis for a series of large public hearings which will be arranged for December, January and subsequent winter months.

Prof. Kruger hopes that members of the teaching staff and graduate students will take advantage of the opportunity to present their thoughts on discipline to the committee in written form and try their best to submit their briefs to him at Room 3025, Sidney Smith Hall, by Nov. 30.

The two most recent meetings of the committee have dealt with discipline in residences. One was at New College and the second was at Victoria, where deans of residence and students gave their views. These meetings were open.

Two additional meetings will be held for the discussion of disciplinary problems in residences not previously covered: Devonshire House, University College residences, Trinity, and St. Michael's. These meetings will be closed; that is, restricted to invited representatives of the students and residence administrators. Prof. Kruger said that members of the committee (which in-

Later the committee will meet with staff and student representatives of Scarborough and Erindale Colleges, whose disciplinary problems may be different from those of the St. George Campus; with deans, principals and directors of all the major divisions, and, in a separate session, with leaders of all the principal student organizations. The committee has not decided whether or not these meetings will be open.

Seek teachers for universities in other lands

The International Studies Program is currently canvassing for staff members in Arts and Social Science departments who might be interested in a one or two year teaching and research assignment to any one of four overseas universities.

The University has received a grant of up to $280,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation to finance the secondment of staff to four institutions: Universidad del Valle in Cali, Colombia; Makerere University College in Kampala, Uganda; University College, Nairobi, Kenya; and University College, Dar-es-Salaam, Tanzania.

The purpose of the grant is simultaneously to reinforce the teaching at these institutions in the social sciences and in the arts subjects and also to support and reinforce the interest at the University of Toronto in these overseas areas. The grant covers the full cost of the secondments and also has such additional features as research funds for the seconded staff and scholarships for graduate students to accompany the staff.

Any staff member interested in learning more about these arrangements is urged to get in touch with Prof. R. C. Pratt, International Studies Program, Sidney Smith Hall.

6 senates open doors to public communication of information, made last April, that "all information regarding the university and its activities should be regarded as public information unless specifically decided otherwise".

The Senate of York University has added five students to its membership and henceforth will hold open meetings.

At the University of Victoria, Acting President R. T. Wallace has announced that its Senate has decided to add a visitors' gallery for future sessions.

"Our main goal is clearer communication", Dean Wallace said. "Senate agreed at its meeting of Nov. 13 that its decisions and discussions should be made known at first hand to those with a direct interest in them. This group includes the public and representatives of the press, as well as all members of the university community."

The next Senate meeting, on December 11, will be open if suitable accommodation can be provided. Arrangements are being made to seat at least 50 and no more than 100 observers, who may take part in the proceedings only on the invitation of the chairman.

Anyone seeking admission must obtain a ticket in advance, not later than noon of the day of the meeting. Tickets will be distributed—first come, first served, as at Waterloo—by the Senate secretary, from the date of the publication of the agenda.

"A few items of Senate business are necessarily private and confidential, and these will be considered in closed session", said Dean Wallace. "This new channel, though, will apply to almost all of the Senate's work. We hope that it will do much to deepen understanding, both off the campus and on it, of the university's needs and aspirations."

Two-day special courses planned for Ophthalmologists and GPs

The University's Eye Department will give a course in Ophthalmology for general practitioners Feb. 27 and 28, 1969.

The course is designed to acquaint the general practitioners with procedures which would be of value in the treatment of common ophthalmic problems seen in general medical practice. Patients will be used as often as possible to illustrate conditions discussed; registrants will be given ample opportunity to examine patients.

Registration for the course is $40.

The Department of Ophthalmology will also offer a course in Neuro-Ophthalmology, to be held April 17 and 18, 1969, at the Toronto General Hospital and the Hospital for Sick Children.

It is designed to interest the clinical ophthalmologist in neuro-ophthalmologic problems. There will be practical demonstrations of the current technology of visual field and ocular muscle examinations. Lectures and symposia will be presented to discuss neuro-anatomy, demyelinating disease, muscular disorders, vascular disease and tumors affecting the visual pathways. Clinical patients will be available for demonstration and individual observation, to illustrate important findings and methods of treatment.

Guests of honour will include Dr. Frank Walsh of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Dr. Tom Kearns of the Mayo Clinic, and Dr. William Hoyt, University of California Medical School.

Council cool to an outsider

There was discussion of the feasibility of finding a chairman for the committee from outside the University who would be acceptable to the committee and who would be willing to act. It was pointed out that the staff and student elections will not be settled until the end of this month, and that the obtaining, first, of agreement on who should be approached, and, secondly, of the consent of the approached, might cause considerable delay. The opinion was expressed that the committee's work would be facilitated if its chairman were someone within the University, and that, moreover, it would be easier for the various groups concerned to make comments on the report with a chairman who was a member of the community than it would be if he were an outsider. The Council agreed to recommend to the President that the committee, when it is established, should be invited to choose its chairman from inside the University for the reasons given above, and that this proposed alteration in the composition of the committee should be discussed with the SAC and the ATS.

The Council discussed the resumption of the adjourned open meeting on October 31st, and heard complaints from several members about the difficulty of seeing and hearing each other at the table in the Senate Chamber. It was agreed that the open meeting should be reconvened in a room such as the Council Chamber in the Galbraith Building where conditions would be more tolerable for the members but where there would still be plenty of room for observers. It was felt that the date should be discussed with the students since they had wanted time to gather further information about research projects.

The Council discussed at considerable length the report on the future development of the Faculty of Law that had been introduced on October 8th, and recommended without dissent: THAT this Council supports the improvement of the quality of instruction in the Faculty of Law through the addition of full-time staff and the expansion of the University's library holdings in the area of legal scholarship to build up the foundation for graduate studies, subject to general university priorities.

The following invited lectures will be given: First session, Paul Vieille Lecture, "Shock Tube Research: Past, Present and Future—A Critical Survey" and "Shock Structure in Solids". Contributed papers in this session will deal with basic shock-tube flow problems including shock structure in gases, liquids, and solids, viscous effects, flow uniformity, new research and unusual applications. Second session, "A Critique of High-Performance, Shock-Tube Driving Techniques"; third session, "High-Explosive Drivers for Shock Tubes"; fourth session, "Application of Electromagnetic Shock Tubes in the Study of Plasmas"; fifth session, "Spectroscopic and Kinetic Studies in Shock Tubes"; sixth session, "Shock-Tube Diagnostics, Instrumentation and Fundamental Data". Provisions for simultaneous translations will not be made. However, individual bilingual translators (Russian, German, French-English) will be made available to assist speakers, if required.

Anyone interested is invited to contribute a paper in any of the six sessions. Abstracts should consist of 1000 words and figures and 150-word summary (in triplicate) and must be submitted on or before Jan. 10, 1969.
